

Mother Nature

Meredith Howard

Lying in the fields, I see cliffs and clouds.
I hear the whir of wings of a bird flushed out of blackberry bushes.
I hear my mother calling,
Her voice carries on the wind Rousing me out of my reverie and enjoyment of the view before me.
I hear my mother calling
and I listen.