

Remembered, Predictable
by Carolann Purcell

Late afternoon

When the lowering temperature hits proper depth

The crows gather one by one on the roof peak

They're not a murder--just a few---

As the sun sets further

All lift off

To sleep elsewhere.